

List of resources available at Emergency Management Australia Library

PORT ARTHUR

To obtain copies of articles or to borrow items, please complete an online request form.

Title : 7:30 Report [videorecording] : Port Arthur special

Publication : [Sydney, NSW] : ABC, 1997.

Physical Description: 1 videodisc (DVD) (30:25 min.) :sd., col. ;4 3/4 in.

Note : ABC Tara Database ID 333386.

Summary: Judy Tierney follows lives of members of Tasman Peninsula community during the 12 months after the Port Arthur massacre as they recover from their grief. Segment from the 7:30 Report broadcast on 21.04.97.

Subject : Port Arthur massacre, Tas., 1996.

DVD 155.937 SEV

Title : 7:30 Report [videorecording] : Port Arthur special the survivors

Publication : [Sydney, NSW] : ABC, 1997.

Physical Description: 1 videodisc (DVD) (28:58 min.) :sd., col. ;4 3/4 in.

Note : ABC Tara Database ID 333773.

Summary: Special 7.30 Report program by reporter Sarah Henderson & producer Jaya Balendra on 1st anniversary of Port Arthur massacre, including interviews with Lynne/Lynn the nurse & 3 other victims of massacre. Segment from the 7:30 Report broadcast on 28.04.97.

Subject : Port Arthur massacre, Tas., 1996.

DVD 155.937 SEV

Title : 7:30 Report [videorecording] : Port Arthur RC

Publication : [Sydney, NSW] : ABC, 2006.

Physical Description: 1 videodisc (DVD) (14:25 min.) :sd., col. ;4 3/4 in.

Note : ABC Tara Database ID 629850.

EMA

'safer sustainable communities'

PORT ARTHUR

Summary: On the eve of the 10th anniversary of the Port Arthur massacre, when gunman Martin Bryant killed 35 people and injured 25, Jocelyn Nettlefold speaks to survivor Peter Crosswell, father of Nanette Mikac Keith Moulton, then Mayor of Tasman, Neil Noye and current Mayor David Laugher. Segment from the 7:30 Report broadcast on 27.04.06.

Subject : Port Arthur massacre, Tas., 1996.

DVD 155.937 SEV

Author : Powell, Susan

Title : Back to basics : [Article] : holding on to the game plan when the rules and the players keep changing

Publication : 1998

Citation: The Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13(3), Spring 1998, pp.11-13

Summary: Describes the personal experiences of the author who was part of the Counselling and Personal Support Services team, established by the Department of Community and Health Services to assist with the long term recovery for the Tasman Peninsula as part of the Port Arthur Incident Recovery Program.

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Lester, Michael

Title : Council action over Port Arthur disaster [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: The Australian Municipal Journal Vol.75(1104) June 1996 p.36

Summary: Tasman council, the Tasmanian government and tourism operators are moving to rebuild the local community and economy in the wake of the Port Arthur massacre

Additional Form Availability: JOURNAL-CITATION

JOURNAL-CITATION

Author : Blair, Tim

Title : Death in the ruins [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: Time No.20 13 May 1996 pp.20-27

PORT ARTHUR

Summary: An account, complete with pictures, of the shooting of 35 tourists by a gunman, at the historic penal colony of Port Arthur, on Tasmania's Tasman Peninsula

Additional Form Availability: JOURNAL-CITATION

JOURNAL-CITATION

Author : Fielding, Peter

Title : The early days : : a management perspective

Publication : 1998

Citation: The Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13(3), Spring 1998, pp.9-10

Summary: Describes the personal experiences of the author who was manager of the Family and Individual Support Services for the Department of Community and Health Services in Tasmania, and in that capacity managed a recovery centre on the Tasman Peninsula after the shootings at Port Arthur.

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Harper, Jill

Title : Emergency recovery response to the Port Arthur shootings : [Article] : an operational management perspective

Publication : 1997

Citation: The Australian Journal of Emergency Management , Vol.12(1), Autumn 1997, pp.2-4

Summary: A personal account of the management of the Emergency Recovery Operations Centre in Hobart after the Port Arthur shootings.

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Blair, Tim

Title : For the term of his natural life [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: Time, no.49, 2 December 1996, p.67

Summary: Australia's worst mass murderer, Martin Bryant, smiled, laughed and waved to victims' relatives in the public gallery of the courtroom, when confronted with the minutiae of his atrocities at the hearing that sentenced him to life without parole for the murders at Port Arthur.

JOURNAL CITATION

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Richardson, Nick

Title : Humanity under fire [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: The Bulletin, vol.116(6047), 19 November 1996, p.24

Summary: The dilemma faced by the medical staff at the Royal Hobart Hospital in having to treat the gunman who had killed innocent people at Port Arthur is examined.

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Burgess, Greg

Title : Integration of emergency management into day-to-day local government functions [Article]

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13 (1), Autumn 1998, pp. 5-8

Summary: A personal account of events after the shootings at Port Arthur. The intention of the article is to give an insight into how a small rural council in the south-east corner of Tasmania dealt with a tragedy of world significance. It describes the establishment and work of the Community Recovery Committee in assisting the community to come to terms with the tragedy which had befallen it, not the least in economic terms as tourism took a downturn.

JOURNAL CITATION

Title : Interim report on the Port Arthur incident

Publication : [Tasmania] : Tasmania State Disaster Committee, 1996

Physical Description: 17 [22] p. :map

Note : Cover title

Contents: Purpose of report -- Port Arthur -- Emergency preparedness arrangements in Tasmania -- Emergency preparedness exercises -- Emergency preparedness arrangements relevant to the Port Arthur incident -- Exercises relevant to the incident -- Tasmania police -- Tasmanian Ambulance Service (TAS) -- Department of Community and Health Services -- State Emergency Service (State Headquarters Staff) -- Critical incident stress management for emergency service personnel -- Local government -- Disaster victim identification and other matters regarding the management of the deceased -- Royal Hobart Hospital -- State Disaster Committee -- Significant events

Books F 364.152309946 INT

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Noye, Neil

Title : The local government response to Port Arthur : [Article] : a personal experience

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13 (1), Autumn 1998, pp. 9-11

Summary: The author's personal experience of the events surrounding the shootings at Port Arthur in April 1996, from his position as Mayor of Tasman Council. Describes the formation of the Community Recovery Task Force and the economic impact the event had on the community as a whole.

Additional Form Availability: JOURNAL-CITATION

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Fielding, Peter

Title : Management of support services at Port Arthur [Article]

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13 (1), Autumn 1998, pp. 12-15

Summary: Describes the establishment of a recovery centre by the Tasmanian Department of Community and Health Services at Nubeena, immediately after the shootings at Port Arthur. Discusses the role and responsibilities of this centre, and lessons learned during the experience. It concludes that feedback from the affected community indicated that the services provided were seen to be appropriate and to have met community expectations.

Additional Form Availability: JOURNAL-CITATION

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Easton, Geoff

Title : Media management and the Port Arthur tragedy [Article]

Publication : 1997

Citation: The Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.12(2), Winter 1997, pp.2-4

Summary: Discusses the most effective ways emergency services organisations can handle the media to obtain the best reporting results for the public and the organisations involved. It is not the role of the emergency service organisations to censor the media or to determine how they present their stories, but what they can do is facilitate and provide the media with an understanding of how these organisations operate and why. Examines how the media was managed during the response to the Port Arthur shootings.

JOURNAL CITATION

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Richardson, Nick

Title : Port Arthur : [Article] : the healing

Publication : 1996

Citation: The Bulletin, vol.116(6047), 19 November 1996, pp.22-23

Summary: Tasmania is slowly coming to terms with the tragic events at Port Arthur, but it is a long uphill climb back to normalcy for the people, particularly those living on the Tasman Peninsula.

JOURNAL CITATION

Title : Port Arthur : : trauma and the counselling response

Publication : [Australia : s.n.], 1996

Physical Description: [7] p. :ill.

Note : Reprinted from Psychotherapy in Australia; 1996; v. 20; no. 4; p. 10-16

Summary: The Port Arthur massacre on Sunday, April 28, 1996, has already achieved a grim distinction in the national consciousness. Holiday-makers visiting the historic site, were randomly shot at for no visible motive, by a lone gunman, on a scale unprecedented in Australian, indeed world history. Thirty five people were killed, another nineteen seriously injured. In the weeks that followed, reactions were numerous, varied and dramatic. Much thought and research has gone into considering what people and communities need following a traumatic event. Theories have been created to explain what happens to the psychological system during and after trauma, and what best assists recovery. Interventions will clearly differ depending on the event itself and the individual's role in the event, whether victim or carer

Books 155.935 POR

Author : Burgess, G.D.

Title : Port Arthur : how Tasman Council coped with the crisis

Publication : 1998

Citation: The Australian Municipal Journal, Vol.77(1119), February-March 1998, pp.17-20

Summary: Tells how a small community of just 2200 coped with one of the worst tragedies Australia has ever witnessed, that of the Port Arthur massacre in April 1996.

JOURNAL CITATION

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Sale, Ian
Hessman, Peter

Title : Port Arthur : lessons for early disaster management

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13 (2), Winter 1998, pp. 39-41

Summary: This paper explores some of the possibilities for prevention of post-traumatic stress disorder among individuals by examining some of the events occurring during the aftermath of the Port Arthur shootings.

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Small, Allan

Title : Port Arthur and the media machine [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: Australian Police Journal, Vol.50(3), September 1996, pp105-123

Summary: A detailed account of the response of the Tasmanian police media unit to the massacre at Port Arthur and the relationship between the police and media organisations during this crisis.

JOURNAL CITATION

Author : Coombs, Craig

Title : Port Arthur Historic Site Management Authority response [Article]

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13 (1), Autumn 1998, pp. 16-19

Summary: Describes the structure of the Port Arthur Historic Site Management Authority, followed by a detailed account of events of 28th April 1996. Lessons learned from the incident are tabled.

Additional Form Availability: JOURNAL-CITATION

JOURNAL CITATION

Shelf Location: V 464

Conference or Meeting Author: Port Arthur Seminar,(1997 :Melbourne, Vic.)

PORT ARTHUR

Title : Port Arthur seminar [videorecording].

Physical Description: 4 videocassettes (VHS) (ca 9 hr 57 min) :sd., col. ;1/2 in.

Note : Organised by the Tasmania State Disaster Committee and sponsored by Emergency Management Australia.

Summary: A video of the proceedings of the Port Arthur Seminar.

Conference or Meeting Author: Port Arthur Seminar(1997 :Melbourne, Vic.)

Title : Port Arthur Seminar Papers : : a record of the proceedings of the Port Arthur Seminar 11 - 12 March 1997, Melbourne, Victoria

Publication : [Canberra] : Emergency Management Australia, 1997

Physical Description: vi, 137 p. :ill., maps

Note : Map on inside back cover

Contents: Setting the scene for the event / Joe Paul -- Port Arthur : an overview of the police response / Richard McCreddie -- Port Arthur : an overview of the police response (part 2) / Barry Bennett -- Port Arthur emergency response : police operations centre / Luppo Prins -- The Port Arthur tragedy : the ambulance perspective / Peter Morgan, Andrew O'Brien, and Grant Lennox -- Port Arthur historic site management authority response / Craig Coombs -- The development and testing of external emergency procedures at the Royal Hobart Hospital / Rod Franks -- Royal Hobart Hospital emergency and medical management of Port Arthur victims / David Smart -- The Port Arthur incident : a critical incident stress management perspective / Matthew Richman -- The Port Arthur shootings : management of support services on the Tasman Peninsula / Peter Fielding -- Establishing community recovery : Port Arthur : April 1996 / Michael White -- The local government response to the Port Arthur incident / Neil Noye -- Telstra response to Port Arthur / Kieran Brown -- Coroner's responsibilities at Port Arthur / Ian R. Matterson -- Forensic overview of the Port Arthur tragedy / T.J. Lyons, G.R.H. Kelsall, and N. Mele -- Port Arthur massacre 1996 : AFDA National Embalming Team -- Preamble -- Detailed report / Stephen Parry -- Port Arthur : media management / Geoff Easton -- Media coverage of the Port Arthur massacre : a view from the media's side / John Raedler -- Volunteer involvement in the Port Arthur incident / Ian Kingston -- The impact of the Port Arthur tragedy on the regional economy / Malcolm Wells -- Closing remarks / Chris Hunter

Books F 364.1523099464 POR

Author : Dutton, Gerard

Title : The Port Arthur shooting incident

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Police Journal, Vol.52(4), September 1998, pp.207-228

Summary: This article chronicles the events that occurred at Port Arthur on 28 April 1996, and the response to the incident by forensic firearms personnel and other scientific investigators. Information on laboratory examinations carried out at a later date are also included. Concludes with some suggestions and comments on forensic investigations of large multiple shooting incidents.

JOURNAL CITATION

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Crumpton-Crook, Rosie

Title : The Port Arthur shootings : : Royal Hobart Hospital staff response

Publication : 1998

Citation: Australian Journal of Emergency Management, Vol.13 (3), Spring 1998, pp. 49-51

Summary: This paper offers an anecdotal account of the author's observations (as Staff Counsellor) of the ways in which staff at the Royal Hobart Hospital coped with the immediate and longer term aftermath of the Port Arthur shootings.

JOURNAL CITATION

Title : Port Arthur update

Publication : Tasmania : Department of Community and Health Services, 1996.

Physical Description: 13 p.;30 cm.

Summary: Contains newspaper articles from the "Port Arthur update", after the Port Arthur massacre in April 1996. Contains July, August, and September 1996.

Books 364.152309946 POR

Author : Bingham, Mike

Title : Suddenly one Sunday

Publication : Pymble, N.S.W. : HarperCollins, c1996

Physical Description: 178 p., [16] leaves of plates

Contents: Part 1: The shadow -- Part 2: Black Sunday -- Part 3: A nation in shock

Books 364.1523099464 SUD

Author : Brady, Clare

Title : Sunday bloody Sunday [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: Police Life May 1996 pp.4-5

Summary: Tasmania's macabre mass shooting is the worst in the nation's recent history. Two teams of Victoria Police's Special Operations Group as well as two Medial Liaison Bureau members were flown to the scene within hours of being notified of the incident on Sunday afternoon, 28th April

JOURNAL-CITATION

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Watchorn, Julian Huxley.

Title : Surviving Port Arthur : : the role of dissociation in the impact of psychological trauma and its implications for the process of recovery / by Julian Huxley Watchorn.

Publication : 2001.

Physical Description: xiv, 208 leaves ;31 cm.

Series: University of Tasmania School of Psychology thesis.

Contents: Section 1: Impact: biological responses -- Ch. 1: Defining trauma -- Ch. 2: Theoretical models of trauma -- Ch. 3: An anatomical perspective of trauma -- Ch. 4: The role of dissociation -- Ch. 5: Other contributory factors -- Section 2: Recovery: psychological processing -- Ch. 6: Treatment and recovery -- Ch. 7: Psychological debriefing - Ch. 8: Defining debriefing -- Ch. 9: Debriefing effectiveness -- Ch. 10: A methodological assessment of CISD research -- Section 3: The Port Arthur Research Project.

Summary: This thesis investigates the efficacy of psychological debriefings for emergency services personnel following a traumatic event as a method to mitigate the effects of, or prevent entirely, post-traumatic stress disorder.

Books 616.852306 WAT

Author : Murphy, Damien

Title : Terror Australis [Article]

Publication : 1996

Citation: The Bulletin Vol.116(6019) 7 May 1996 pp.18-21

Summary: The Port Arthur massacre sent shock waves across bass Strait to mainland Australia and beyond. When police captured a man after his 19-hour rampage on the Tasman Peninsula, it had already distinguished itself as the worst ever civilian shooting by a lone gunman

JOURNAL-CITATION

Author : Paul, Joe

Title : Terror in Tasmania [Article]

Publication : 1998

Citation: CCEP News, Spring 1998, pp.3, 10

Summary: An account of the shootings at Port Arthur on 28th April 1996, by the Director of the Tasmania State Emergency Service, including steps taken in handling of the bodies and response by the Royal Hobart Hospital to the event. Mentions the incidence of post traumatic stress among emergency service personnel and steps taken to deal with this situation. Also discusses the services provided to the community to assist them in recovering from the event, and the effect of the event on the Port Arthur Historic Site Management Authority.

JOURNAL CITATION

PORT ARTHUR

Author : Morgan, Peter

Title : Tragedy at Port Arthur : An operational perspective

Publication : 1996

Citation: State newsletter: Ambulance service of New South Wales Issue 22 June 1996 pp.6-8

Summary: An operational account of the role played by the Tasmanian Ambulance Service during the shootings and siege at Port Arthur

JOURNAL-CITATION
